“I view medicine as a combination of science and art. If I could change anything about healthcare, it would be the cost and waste.”

About Onan Bomar, MD

As a physician, Dr. Onan Bomar loves “the complexity of how many simple ideas and concepts must be put together to provide care.” He believes transparency is key in establishing trust and wants his patients to feel empowered and in control of their care. Dr. Bomar views medicine as a combination of science and art and explains that if he could change anything about healthcare, it would be the cost and waste.

As a child, Dr. Bomar was military dependent. Although he is from Florida, he has had the opportunity to travel across the United States and to different parts of the world. In his free time, he loves spending time with his two sons, watching movies, and trying new foods. Dr. Bomar also enjoys cross-stitching.
