

Amanda Olagunju, DO

“I try to make a difference in patients’ lives by truly listening to them—their desires, hopes, fears—and then helping them to make positive health changes to achieve their goals.”

About Amanda Olagunju, DO

Dr. Amanda Olagunju loves connecting with her patients and coworkers. “I try to make a difference in patients’ lives by truly listening to them—their desires, hopes, fears—and then helping them to make positive health changes to achieve their goals,” she explains. If she could change anything about healthcare today, she would lower costs and increase accessibility for medical care and healthy foods. In her free time, she enjoys creative writing. She also loves watching musicals and is a huge Star Trek fan.

For seven years, Dr. Olagunju proudly served in the U.S. Air Force. While on active duty, she served as both a primary care physician and a clinic medical director. She is now a part of the Air National Guard.
